

Poltergeist in kindergarten

By Jon Mannsåker

In a completely newly built kindergarten in Lalm in Vågå municipality has been witnessed by many unexplained events. It has flown small objects through the air, such as plastic beads, plastic toys and magnetic pieces. Some items are coming fluttering through the air. Doors open and shuts itself off while people watch. You hear bangs. Mostly it has happened after the children have gone home. Everyone that has been present have experienced it, either was one or 15 people. It started in April once, and the intensity has varied from completely quiet days and periods to daily events.

Rector at Lalm upbringing center Anita Hølmo and property manager Rune The gate room has been open opposite parents and the press to avoid creating unnecessary fear. The parents have coped it with socket. Nobody makes fun of it that happens, even if opinions are divided about what it can be.

"Kasper"

Together with the children, the phenomenon has got a name: Kasper. It will thus be okay to talk about it for the little ones too. The does not, however, seem as if the children have to deceased persons. The second theory says that the phenomena follow most vividly people, often in their teens, with mental tensions. At least it's about about phenomena that have been observed in all cultures at all times, so there is no doubt about the experience. The question is how to interpret it.

Blessing

It has been important for the municipality to get it calm again. Therefore, they engaged Provost Paul Skuland in Nord-Gudbrandsdal prosti. As a former priest in Finnmark he has worked with several «restless house », where similar things happen. With text reading from the Bible and Our Father, has Skuland walked around the upbringing center in priest's dress with light and cross and light blessing. It was not expulsion of spirits or something along those lines, but prayer about peace and that the children should be well. He experienced even that light bulbs and small magnets flew through the air, powerful bang, and doors opened and closed, while he was in kindergarten. To Our Land, he has stated that he thinks it is the soul of a deceased person who has not found peace.

been so very concerned with the phenomenon. The events have not been either threatening or frightening in nature.

NPS was contacted

The newspaper GD contacted our company and telephone interview our leader Kjell Arne Lie. He told a little about poltergeist in general, and mentioned the two types of theories which is launched as an explanation. The one says that it can be energies that are linked

However, the blessing did not help to remove the events in this case, yourself if he had had good results in any cases previously. It was quiet for over one week, but then it continued. New visit, same result. This is how it went on for several years weeks.

Clear-sighted impressions

Finally, Provost Skuland contacted one clairvoyant, deeply Christian, older man north. He came and got the impression that two people over a hundred years ago were buried in a place where today it stands one memory rack. They were laid in unmarried soil. He and the dean blessed the graves and that who was in them. The municipality has taken regard to his impression and moved swing stand and plant the area, in hopes that it can be quiet on the spot. IN at the time of writing (August 13) has it actually been quiet in the nursery after this blessing and the move.

Reactions

Of course, the incidents and press the postings reactions. As expected stated the spokesman for Human-Ethical Association Jens Brun-Pedersen himself willing that it might have a natural explanation. "Otherwise it would be one world sensation". (A little sigh of relief: What competence does he have about poltergeist experiences? Think NRK and other media that HEF has special expertise on paranormal phenomena strong words, but he supported the kindergarten handling the case as long as they felt comfortable with it.

Finally

This is a very credible case of poltergeist. One must accept the events as authentic when there are so many credible witnesses to the events. But the explanation is understood to be uncertain. Those two general theories such as Kjell Arne Lie discussed above, both may have something to themselves, in different cases. The theory of restless deceased souls may be supported in this case, since it has become quiet after the blessing. But you should still investigate whether it is a possible center person for the events among those employees or others in the upbringing center, and if perhaps the person has been on vacation afterwards. If there is none such center person, and it remains calm in Lalm, one might think they did remedy in laying the foundation of troubled souls as the cause. Either way, one must note one

Snåsamannen found landslide victims in Vefsn

by Ragnhild Moy

Dan 84 year old Joralf Gjerstad, better known as Snåsamannen, has left been helpful when it dragged out to find the last deceased after the landslide the stanza in Vefsn in mid-May.

Snåsamannen had withdrawn back from the public and stopped with to receive inquiries from the public after the violent commotion which followed in the wake of the book about him, written by Ingar Sletten Kolloen. It was simply too much for the old the man of honor. But he who believed he was too old or weakened to "See" the unknown, must think again.

Sunday 16 May was a follow-up of five women and three men taken by a large landslide of snow and soil masses. They were to climb Jamtfjelltinden in Vefsn municipality to publish this year's signing book. It was became mild weather, and the snowmelt had gained momentum. That triggered it violent landslide and took with it the whole followed. Four women lost their lives. Three of
